General Comment

All religious institutions or individuals seeking to not use their funds for some purpose have the right to said restrictions.

Let it come to the attention of all men in power to address, execute and alter these laws that the provision of any service, medicine related or otherwise, is a pre-first amendment issue. By definition, the freedom of expression, which the expenditure of funds is, is a constitutional freedom allotted to all men. The first amendment sought to define these rights so that governments would not trample them. In our constitutional republic there is no room for the inhibition of the free exercise of these expressions.

Thank you.
